Code of Ethics.

ARTICLE I.

SEC. 1.—The Dentist should be ever ready to respond to the reasonable wants of his patrons, and should fully recognize the obligations involved in his duties towards them, as, in many cases, they are unable to comprehend the operation or service performed, or to correctly estimate its value. The practitioner must be guided by his own sense of right in treating the cases, as his own superior knowledge dictates. His manner should be gentle and sympathetic, and yet sufficiently firm to enable him to secure the best results of his skill. He should gain the confidence of his patrons, not alone by the skilful performance of difficult operations, but also by attending carefully to the simple cases committed to his care.

SEC. 2.—The Dentist, without being obtrusive or pedantic, should impart such information to his patrons as his opportunities afford him, in regard to the causes and nature of the disease in the teeth, or adjacent parts, which he may be called upon to treat ; and should explain to them the importance of availing themselves of such timely preventatives or remedies as he may deem necessary to their welfare. He should also communicate such general information as shall enable them to exercise an intelligent appreciation of what the profession aims to accomplish.

SEC. 3.—The Dentist shall be temperate in all things, keeping both mind and body in the best possible health, that his patients may have the benefit of that clearness of judgment and skill which they have a right to expect.

ARTICLE II.

SEC. 1.—Every member of the dental profession is bound as such to maintain the honor and integrity of the profession. To this end he should himself be upright and courteous in his intercourse with the public, and his brethren in the profession.

SEC. 2.—It is unprofessional to resort to public advertisements, such as cards, handbills, posters or signs, calling attention to peculiar styles of work, photos, lithographs, or engravings made from wood, steel, or other materials ; advertising free operations, prices for services, special modes of operating, or to claim superiority over neighboring practitioners ; to publish reports of cases, or certificates in the public prints ; to go from house to house soliciting or performing operations ; to circulate or recommend nostrums, or to perform other similar acts. But nothing in this section shall be so construed as to imply that it is unprofessional for dentists to announce in the public prints or by card, simply their names, occupation, and place of business, or in the same manner to announce their removal, absence from or return to business, or to issue to their patients appointment cards.

SEC. 3.—The Dentist, when applied to for merely advice or temporary relief, by the patient of a reputable practitioner, whose services at that time he is unable to procure, should guard against disparaging the family dentist by hints, inquiries or any other means calculated to weaken the patient's confidence in him. At the same time the dentist should not, from too high a sense of professional courtesy to his neighboring practitioner, allow the interests of persons so applying for counsel or service, to be jeopardized.

SEC. 4.—When general rules shall have been adopted by members of the profession, practising in the same localities, in relation to fees, it is unprofessional and dishonorable to depart from these rules, except when variation of circumstances require it. And it is ever to be regarded as unprofessional to warrant operations or work as an inducement to patronage. It is also unprofessional to violate, or be a party to the violation, in letter or in spirit of the dental law.
